Emphasis on understanding and improving communication among health professionals, and between health professionals and clients. Explores the rapidly emerging field of health communication. Selected concepts and theories of human communication are directly applied to communication problems and situations in health care settings through the use of case studies. In addition, pertinent research that helps explain human interaction in health care is incorporated through readings and discussions.

COMS 162. Gender Ideology and Communication.
Prerequisite(s): COMS 100A
Term Typically Offered: Fall, Spring
Scholarly, theoretical and critical writings on the production and circulation of gender roles, images, and gender-types attributes through communication, with a special focus on mass-mediated communication such as television, video, and film.

COMS 163. Propaganda, Power, & Manipulation.
Term Typically Offered: Fall, Spring
This course will map major moments in the development of power and propaganda as a communication apparatus, identify the discursive and media presentations of ideologies, and engage in struggles for control and resistance. Twentieth century propaganda sought to advance nationalism, advertise consumer society, and enact war. The 21st century "clash of civilizations" couples media and events into circulation of acts of terror. With post-modern social media, novel interactions among communication apparatus, norms, and global entities generate new threats and opportunities.
COMS 164. Visual Communication. 3 Units
Prerequisite(s): COMS 100A and 100B or equivalent, with a grade of C- or better.
Term Typically Offered: Fall, Spring, Summer

Comprehensive overview of the theoretical concepts and communication methodologies appropriate for analysis of contemporary visual messages. Focuses on rhetorical analysis of visual messages. Significant research and critical writing required

COMS 165. Communication and Religion. 3 Units
Term Typically Offered: Fall, Spring, Summer

Examines the history, development and present state of religious communication. Discussion of the limits and challenges communication theories face when confronted with situations requiring them to describe the indescribable. Emphasis upon the communication methods in a religious context as well as the communication strategies, limits, and possibilities that are revealed in what is arguably the most extreme of communication situations: the intersection of religion and words.

COMS 166. Theories of Persuasion and Attitude Change. 3 Units
Term Typically Offered: Fall, Spring

Various theories of persuasion and attitude change, both classical and empirical, in terms of their effectiveness and social impact. Includes units on production and consumption of persuasive messages.

COMS 167. Systems and Theories of Rhetoric. 3 Units
Prerequisite(s): COMS 100B or equivalent with a grade of "C-" or better.
Term Typically Offered: Fall, Spring, Summer

Historical survey of theories of rhetoric. Comparison/contrast of scope and value of rhetorical theories. Practice in critical writing.

COMS 168. Approaches to Rhetorical Criticism. 3 Units
Prerequisite(s): COMS 100B or equivalent with a grade of "C-" or better.
Term Typically Offered: Fall, Spring, Summer

Prerequisite(s): COMS 100B with a grade of C- or better; completion of 12 units of upper division COMS courses; or unclassified graduate student status; or instructor permission.
Term Typically Offered: Fall, Spring, Summer

Introduction to television criticism theory and to various critical methods with which television program texts may be analyzed. Current theoretical and critical issues in the function of criticism and the role of the critic are addressed through readings, writing assignments, screenings and discussion.

COMS 170. Data Analysis in Communication Research. 3 Units
Prerequisite(s): COMS 100C or equivalent with a grade of "C-" or better; or instructor permission.
Term Typically Offered: Fall, Spring, Summer

Introduction to the application of data analysis to the study of communication processes.

COMS 171. Survey Methods in Communication Research. 3 Units
Prerequisite(s): COMS 100C or equivalent with a grade of "C-" or better; or instructor permission.
Term Typically Offered: Fall, Spring, Summer

Techniques of survey research in communication, including sampling, questionnaire construction, interviewing, data analysis, and report writing. Each student designs and executes a research project.

COMS 172. Content Analysis. 3 Units
Prerequisite(s): COMS 100C or equivalent with a grade of "C-" or better; or instructor permission.
Term Typically Offered: Fall, Spring

Content analysis as a research technique in communication. Emphasizes design and execution of content analysis studies in a wide range of communication situations. Each student completes several short studies and a major project.

COMS 172A. Qualitative Research Methods in Communication. 3 Units
Prerequisite(s): COMS 100B, or instructor permission.
Term Typically Offered: Fall, Spring

Focuses on qualitative research methods as one methodological option to use in scholarly research. Emphasizes the design and execution of a qualitative research project using tools such as interviewing, focus groups, and observational methods. Each student designs and completes a research project.

COMS 173. Communication, Language and Culture. 3 Units
Prerequisite(s): COMS 100A.
Term Typically Offered: Spring only

Cross-cultural exploration of communication and social interaction; relationship between language and society; cross-cultural implications of values embedded in message production, transmission, and interpretation; studies of how language influences perception and organization of social reality; linguistics, information and message transmission.

Note: Restricted to junior and above or instructor permission.

COMS 174. International Communication. 3 Units
Prerequisite(s): COMS 100A.
Term Typically Offered: Fall, Spring, Summer

Movement of mediated messages across and between national boundaries. Topics include news and entertainment flow, media systems and philosophies, cultural dependency and imperialism, the new world information order and communication development.

COMS 176. Communication and Terrorism. 3 Units
Prerequisite(s): COMS 100A or instructor permission
Term Typically Offered: Spring only

This course addresses the communication aspects of terrorism, including both the ways terrorism has been used to make political and religious statements worldwide; how the media cover those messages; and how we talk about those messages and the coverage they receive. The course draws on the cutting-edge communication research from international/intercultural, political, mass communication, and computer-mediated communication sources. This is a course in the communication of terrorism. It is neither a course in the political science of terrorism nor in the criminal justice enforcement of counter-terrorism.
Examines and critiques the relationship between the mass media and sports. Reviews theoretical approaches for studying media and sports (including historical, sociological, psychological, political, and cultural studies perspectives), then examines how sport is mediated through literature, print journalism, radio, and television.

COMS 180. Senior Seminar in Organizational Communication. 3 Units
Prerequisite(s): COMS 145; completion of 12 units of upper division COMS courses including COMS 100A.
Term Typically Offered: Fall, Spring, Summer
Seminar on communication theories, techniques and research methodologies in the field of social and governmental organizational systems.

COMS 181. Senior Seminar in Small Group Communication. 3 Units
Prerequisite(s): COMS 105; completion of 12 units of upper division COMS courses including COMS 100A.
Term Typically Offered: Fall, Spring, Summer
Seminar on the ways theories of group communication are realized in actual social settings.

COMS 182. Senior Seminar in Interpersonal Communication. 3 Units
Prerequisite(s): COMS 8, COMS 143, and completion of 12 units of upper division COMS courses including COMS100A.
Term Typically Offered: Fall, Spring, Summer
Seminar on advanced theories of interpersonal communication. Sample topics include relational development, relational termination, communication and interpersonal attraction, and communication competence. Students present one in-class report and complete a major research paper.

COMS 183. Senior Seminar in Media Issues and Ethics. 3 Units
Prerequisite(s): COMS 55 or JOUR 55; COMS 150; completion of 12 units of upper division COMS courses including COMS 100A.
Term Typically Offered: Fall, Spring
Seminar on the functions and roles of communication media in contemporary society. Includes issues and ethical considerations associated with freedom, responsibility and control examined from the points of view of the media, the government and the public. Specific topics will vary.

COMS 184. Social Media and Public Relations. 3 Units
Prerequisite(s): COMS 118 Survey of Public Relations
Term Typically Offered: Fall, Spring
Examine and apply public relations principles and strategies to research, plan, execute, and evaluate social media management on different platforms. Through discussion, simulation projects, and certificate education, students explore brand communication strategies with different social media tools, social media policy, influencer marketing, employee advocacy, crisis social media, and social media measurement.

COMS 186. Seminar in Health Communication. 3 Units
Term Typically Offered: Fall, Spring
Examines how health messages impact individuals, communities, and mass audiences. Critiques health communication research, raises awareness about health-related messages in our daily lives, applies theories of health communication, and critically analyzes how the creation, sending, and reception of health messages impacts society. Sample topics include doctor-patient communication, cross-cultural communication about health, and mass media effects of health-related images in media.

COMS 187. Issue Management and Case Studies in Public Relations. 3 Units
Prerequisite(s): COMS 118; completion of 12 units of upper division COMS courses.
Term Typically Offered: Fall, Spring
Examines the management of issues in the public and private sectors including knowledge and skills in the communication activities and thinking processes that affect an issue's development. Uses case studies of organizations–governmental agencies, businesses, and not-for-profit entities to assess issue development and management by examining the fundamental questions confronting organizations: What should the particular organization do and how should it do it? Examines criteria for selecting among alternative options, and the relation of the organization to its environment. Explores the broader social, legal, and ethical implications of the organization's activities.

COMS 188. Senior Seminar in Intercultural Communication. 3 Units
Prerequisite(s): COMS 116; completion of 12 units of upper division COMS courses including COMS 100A.
Term Typically Offered: Fall, Spring, Summer
Critically examines and analyzes complex dynamics and concepts in communication and culture in a pluralistic society. Also relates various perspectives on intercultural communication theories and methods to an analysis of social interaction processes among culturally diverse groups. An interactive dimension includes problem-solving strategies.

COMS 189. Practicum in Communication Training. 3 Units
Prerequisite(s): COMS 145 and COMS 154 or instructor permission.
Term Typically Offered: Spring only
Students work in groups to complete organizational training projects within community organizations. After assessing the organization's needs, students design, conduct and evaluate training. Advanced readings and professional competencies are emphasized.

COMS 190. Human Communication on the Internet. 3 Units
