COMS 175. Creative Problem Solving. 3 Units
Term Typically Offered: Fall, Spring
Creative problem solving techniques for use by individuals and groups. Topics include the nature of creative problem solving, barriers to creativity, clear problem definition, idea generation, decision making, group dynamics in creative situations, implementation of changes, and overcoming resistance to change.
COMS 176. Communication and Terrorism. 3 Units
Prerequisite(s): COMS 100A or instructor permission
Term Typically Offered: Spring only

This course addresses the communication aspects of terrorism, including both the ways terrorism has been used to make political and religious statements worldwide, how the media cover those messages, and how we talk about those messages and the coverage they receive. The course draws on the cutting-edge communication research from international/intercultural, political, mass communication, and computer-mediated communication sources. This is a course in the communication of terrorism. It is neither a course in the political science of terrorism nor in the criminal justice enforcement of counter-terrorism.

COMS 178. Virtual Communities on the Internet. 3 Units
Term Typically Offered: Fall, Spring

The nature of communication in virtual communities on the Internet and the impact that these communities have on traditional communication media. Topics include: the interaction of real and cyber communities, self-publishing, educational uses of virtual communities, virtual self-governance, artificial intelligent agents, and the issues of security, privacy, and anonymity. Students will participate in structured on-line activities.

COMS 179. Media, Sports, and Society. 3 Units
Term Typically Offered: Spring only

Examines and critiques the relationship between the mass media and sports. Reviews theoretical approaches for studying media and sports (including historical, sociological, psychological, political, and cultural studies perspectives), then examines how sport is mediated through literature, print journalism, radio, and television.
